A GAINST WIND AND TIDE.

AUTHOR OF "HAWKSTER," "SYLVAN HOLT'S DAUGHTER," BTC.

One vol., 12mo. 440 pages. Cloth. Price, $1.

From The Boston Transcript.

"Nobody can read it without feeling the force of its pathos, its tenderness, its homely sagacity, its practical truth. It exhibits the career of two brothers, one of whom is the representative of solid character, and the other of impulsive feeling and brilliant talent; and the mode by which the separate incidents of their lives are made to harmonize in one plot, shows no little artistic power. Among the throng of novels which press upon the attention of the novel reader, this one is worthy of especial notice."

AGAINST WIND AND TIDE. From The Boston Post.

"I CONFRES THAT NO ENGLISH NOVEL SINCE ADAM BEDE H ABSORBED ME IN THE READING, AND, WHEN I ADD THAT, IN MANY RESPECTS, THIS BOOK IS A STRIKING REMINDER OF JOHN HALPAY, I PREL THAT THE COMPARISON IS EQUALLY COMPLIMENTARY AND JUST."

AGAINST WIND AND TIDE. From The Albion.

"Among the very best novels of the day we place Against Wind and Tide, by Holme Lee. There are passages of simple and touching pathos in this story, some of almost tragic interest, few of any remarkable lightness or vivacity, but several which in their exposition of the mingled motives, the crossing purposes, and red antagonisms which influence human action, ar sed in the works of any novel writer of the day—we d not except Bulwer or Thackersy."

And lo! on high the glorious shade Of Washington lights all the gloom, And points unto these words, arrayed In lines of fire around his tomb:

"Americans! your fathers shed Their blood to rear the Union's fame; For this their fearless banners spread On many a gory plain.

book is to make woman appear more lovely and lovable in the eyes of man."

WOMAN (LA FEMME.)

The Baltimore Eachange says: "In L'Amour, Michelet has shown us the rudimentary woman, so to speak—unformed, dependant, helpless—needing to be scothed, sustained, rudded, strengthened; and he says—love her! In La Femme, he introduces to us the cultivated woman, fitted by her adacation for all the duties of a wife sand mother; and he says—marry her! La Femme begins, therefore, where L'Amour left off."

The Boston Saturday Gazette aays: "The thousands and tens of thousands who have read and reread Michelet's 'Lova,' will need no urging to purchase his new work 'WOMAN.' It is as philosophical, at instructing, and as fascinating. ... A book every man and svery woman onghit to read. It cannot fall to interest, and we firmly believe it cannot fall to benefit. From the freedom with which court life is sketched, a panic has been created among the writer's countrymen, the Berlin police has selzed the impression, and the executrix has been threatened with legal proceedings.

Her style has a richness, energy and vividness corresponding to the clearness and fullness of her intellect and the earnestness and warmt of her heart. She could write nothing which was not resdable; and the books in which she discusses social and moral questions are not only among the most valuable, but among the most popular books in the literature of philanthropy and reform."—Boston Transcript.

MODERN ROME.

1 vol. 12mo. Cloth, $125.

A book which cannot fall to attract attention, and be read with delight by all readers who feel interest or sympathy in the, fate of Rome. The Low on Loader said of it recently:

"A neat and well told story, representing life in Modern Rome, with much spirit and precision, in Medemoisselle Mort. The heroine is a young cantatrice, Irene Mort, whose character is very cleverly drawn. There are also come vivid descriptions of Papal oppression, and the state of public feeling in the year 1848, when the heroic Charles Albert placed himself at the head of the general movement in favor of Italian Independence."

mind, and a warm, earness, and true sears. Human sympastry an essential element in the right understanding of history, and you have written, as it seems to me, from an emineatly human point of view. The hardest part of your task is done; for the hardest period to treat on our side of the Aliastic, completely cut off as we are from the suggestive associations and sympathics which make the remote past so life-like a study in Zerope, is the of Gallic, Roman, and Marovingian Gaul; and if you have succeeded so well in this, what may we not expect from you when the unity of your subject permits you to being all your strength to bear upon a connected narrative, full, harmonious animates, with striking characters, dramatic incidents, and the clear and well-defined movement of a great civilisation.

"Your style is clear, forcible, and at times highly graphic. There are inequalities, I think, and occasional indice from weariness, redeemed, however, by passages of singular terraments and power. The description of the invasion of Astilia is equal to any thing in our historical literature, and the expection of the character of Christianity and its influences on the Rossan and German would, is a fine specimen of philosophical thought and writing."—[Extract from a Letter to the Anthor from Preference G.
